

University of Edinburgh

In one geoengineering scheme, U.S. and U.K. scientists are studying the idea of ships (as seen in this artist's rendering) that would spray droplets of saltwater into the atmosphere, making cloud cover thicker and whiter, thus reflecting more sunlight back into space.

Close this window

©2009 Yale University