Hazards of Storing Spent Fuel

Dangerous conditions can occur if water drains from pools storing radioactive fuel rods.

The loss of water allows radiation from fuel to escape. The increased heat can cause the rods’ zirconium cladding to fail, releasing radiation. Enough heat could cause a zirconium fire that would further spread radiation.