In case there's any doubt, White House spokesman Robert Gibbs said today that it's very likely Pre seek re-election in 2012.

"There's a lot of work that's left to do," Gibbs said on CNN's State of the Union, adding what figure election year arguments.

"When he walked into that White House, we were shedding 700,000 (to) 800,000 jobs in a month for 11 straight months, we've added jobs. So we're making progress and I know he wants to continue progress and finish those jobs."

To be sure, Gibbs said Obama has not formally told him he's running again, "but I would assume ... most people are planning for that likely to happen, yes."

Those people include top White House aide David Axelrod, who will be moving back to Chicago in late January or early February ... to help set up Obama's re-election organization.

During his CNN appearance, Gibbs also talked about possible areas of cooperation between Obama and congressional Republicans, including the incoming GOP House majority. Possibilities include entitlement reform, education, and ways to reduce the massive federal debt.

700 legislative seats was truly historical any way you slice it!
And while nobody claimed or expected 100%, some career politicians like Harry & Nancy had the fight of t from virtual nobodys, winning by slim margins.

TexasRules,
Obama is no longer inexperienced. We have a good balance of power right now. The next couple of years compromises, which is how it should be. Obama and his family do a good job of representing this country even though I didn't vote for him I have no problem in him being re-elected to a second term.

dispatcher _ Are you even aware that the government has no money of its own, that it has to be taken fror businesses before it can be doled out to people like you?

But like most libs, you probably believe that ALL money belongs to the state and that we are lucky the gov what we earn. That's why libs consider tax cuts a "cost."

Most Americans recognize real numbers not the watered down liberal candy coated version.

Right. When dems are in control, the numbers are liberal candy coated data. When repubs are in control, :
 17 decimal places.

Most americans recognize partisan bias as well.

doesn't matter how much you rant and rave.....reality is if all the senate had been up for reelection it w
 Congress.....republicans out numbering the dems
 *****

Rant and rave? Hello? We weren't talking about elections. You can make up all the numbers you want. Th calculated by the gov't isn't a partisan number.
