UV Index: Annual Time Series

Graphs of the UV Index forecast and "clear sky" UV Index forecast over the course of a year are available. Use the table of cities below to view a city's UV Index time series for a particular year. Each time series runs from January 1 through December 31. Within the graph, the ranges of exposure (minimal, low, moderate, high and very high) are colored. At the bottom of each graph is an accounting of the number of days the UV Index was in a certain exposure range.

* Note - The Exposure Categories reflect the guidelines of the WHO's Global Solar UV Index

 Also Note - The days may not add up to 365 due to missing data.

 Also, Also Note - Honolulu and San Juan do not have cloud information provided so as to compute the cloud attenuation, hence the UV Index forecast is the same as the "clear sky" UV Index

The data used to generate the below graphs can be found at the following ftp site: <ftp.cpc.ncep.noaa.gov/long/uv/cities>
