UN Security Stops Journalist's Questions About ClimateGate

by Mike Flynn

A Stanford Professor has used United Nation security officers to silence a journalist asking him “inconvenient questions” during a press briefing at the climate change conference in Copenhagen.

Professor Stephen Schneider’s assistant requested armed UN security officers who held film maker Phelim McAleer, ordered him to stop filming and prevented further questioning after the press conference where the Stanford academic was launching a book.

McAleer, a veteran journalist and film maker, has recently made a documentary “Not Evil Just Wrong” which takes a sceptical look at the science and politics behind Global Warming concerns.

He asked Professor Schneider about his opinions on Climategate – where leaked emails have revealed that a senior British professor deleted data and encouraged colleagues to do likewise if it contradicted their belief in Global Warming.

Professor Phil Jones, the head of Britain’s Climate Research Unit, has temporarily stood down pending an investigation into the scandal.

Professor Schneider, who is a senior member of the UN’s Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC), said he would not comment on emails that may have been incomplete or edited.

During some testy exchanges with McAleer, UN officials and Professor Schneider’s assistants twice tried to cut short McAleer’s question.

However as the press conference drew to a close Professor Schneider’s assistant called armed UN security guards to the room. They held McAleer and aggressively ordered cameraman Ian Foster to stop filming. The guard threatened to take away the camera and expel the film crew from the conference if they did not obey his instructions to stop filming Professor Schneider.

The guard demanded to look at the film crews press credentials and refused to allow them to film until Professor Schneider left the room. McAleer said he was disappointed by Professor Schneider’s behaviour.

“It was a press conference. Climategate is a major story – it goes to the heart of the Global Warming debate by calling into question the scientific data and the integrity of many scientists involved.”

"These questions should be answered. The attempts by UN officials and Professor Schneider's assistant to remove my microphone were hamfisted but events took a more sinister turn when they called an armed UN security officer to silence a journalist."

Two officers corralled the film crew and one officer can be seen on tape threatening the cameraman. The Guard can also be heard warning that if the crew did not stop filming their would seize the equipment and the journalists expelled from the conference.

McAleer says he has made an official complaint about the incident.

"I have met Mr Christopher Ankerson the UN's head of security for the conference and he has confirmed it was Professor Schneider's staff who asked the security guards to come corral us at the press conference. Mr Ankerson could not say what grounds the security guard had for ordering us to stop filming."

"This is a blatant attempt to stop journalists doing journalism and asking hard questions. It is not the job of armed UN security officers to stop legitimate journalists asking legitimate questions of senior members of the UN's IPCC."

Professor Schneider was interviewed for McAleer's "Not Evil Just Wrong" documentary but lawyers later wrote to McAleer saying he was withdrawing permission for the interview to be used.

McAleer, who is from Ireland, has gained quite a reputation for asking difficult questions of those who have been promoting the idea of man-made Global Warming.

His microphone was cut off after he asked former vice-president Al Gore about the British court case which found that An Inconvenient Truth had a nine significant errors and exaggerations. Almost 500,000 people have watched the incident on youtube.

Hopefully the film crew got a clip of the "Profressor" running away, that's what happened and that's how it should be spun, these people are not doing science, they are doing religious PR

Sunshine Connie - December 11th, 2009 at 6:19 pm

The guilty usually want the truth hidden from those being victimized. SOP from these so called scientists whose goal is to control the world and it's riches for their own prestige. This is not about climate and enviornment as much as social engineering and money the poorer nations want. They choose not to work but want the benefits which will only enrich the despot leaders.

Wow. I guess the "Climate Debate" is now the "Climate Monologue." Good thing the UN is on US soil or free speech would be squelched. I hope the inevitabel lawsuits against EPA endangerment finding can lead to real questions, under oath of these weenies. May turn out to be the best thing Obama has done to foster real "debate."

If the ~~Comp~~Scientists believe in Global warming they certainly should be able to answer the questions.....

This is what will come of One World Government as espoused by The Whon and his handlers (oops, sorry, disciples). Your free speech will absolutely positively stop once it is found to be even slightly heretical in relation to the Truth given to us by our Masters.

It makes me feel very sorry for those who will have to live most of their lives under this kind of tyranny.

LolaLola - December 11th, 2009 at 6:32 pm

I have a question: Why do certain people even after discovering they have been lied to and manipulated still continue to believe what they know in their heart of hearts is a lie.

Phelim McCleer is merely doing his job as a journalist. Apparently Schneider in the face of having to answer a question he knows is going to negate his theory if he answers is cannot find the courage to stand in the face of one of the few people to ask these questions and answer them. Apparently even after the man in charge of the UK's Climate Research Unit steps down we speed up instead of going oh perhaps we are too hasty.

LolaLola - December 11th, 2009 at 6:32 pm

To me it reminds me a lot of the Inquisition. Watch the leftist Gaiia worshippers start screaming foul here. There is no room for debate. Like Gallileo challenging the Church, McCleer stands alone. But someone has to say um there is no such thing has human induced Climate Change and the subtext of those words should be and the ones creating teh hysteria and filling kids heads with this garbage know it.

What is behind this denial of data dumping and research shennanagins? Fear or political cynicism. Pure and simple. Either Schneider really is a fanatic and cannot allow himself to be honest and say he is wrong or he is a cynic and he understands that his "theorys" has to more do with politics and his obvious socialistic view of the world than it does good science. Of course, he does science a disservice but he doesn't care. The goal is control of human beings not good earth stewardship.

Stewart Small - December 11th, 2009 at 6:35 pm

Of Course-the UN doesnt want anyone to know hoiw there former deputy chlef MAURICE STRONG is the man behind the entire Global warming scam. ALWHORE is nothing more than a dipstick idiot they needed to be the face of the fraud, the fall guy if they failed. First we have the Oil for Food scam, now we have Climategate. And while we are at it, lets start looking at NASA and NOAA. Id bet we have a few frauds there also, starting with the obvious, James Hanson. We need several things to be done beyond the shadow of a doubt. Eliminating the Fed reserve is one. Getting out of the fraudulent, corrupt UN is another.

saltydog53 - December 11th, 2009 at 6:36 pm

It just keeps getting more and more amazing that they're all not just under American scrutiny but world scrutiny and they just keep lying.It's the American president who's making sure that the American taxpayers get hosed the worst.

What seems to have motivated the scientists involved in Climategate was the arrogant belief that that the way to save the world was to conceal or misrepresent ambiguous and contradictory findings about global warming that might "confuse" the public. But substituting spin for scientific rigor is a terrible strategy.

kcboomer - December 11th, 2009 at 6:38 pm

In communist countries the dictators block media from reporting the truth by intimidation and limiting media interaction with officials. Iran, China, North Korea. If it does not promote the party line then it is squashed. Sound familiar.

I have to disagree with Mr. McAleer on the title of his documentary "Not Evil Just Wrong" it has been inappropriately named, it should be "Evil and Wrong"!

Any group that thinks they are above answering questions on an issue they are promoting and has shown its ill intent is evil!! But I give Mr. Mc Aleer kudos for having the guts to go after these people, he is a great man driven by knowledge and not greed! Which I thought the left was suppose to be all about....

Stewart Small - December 11th, 2009 at 6:49 pm

One last thing about the EPA. An EPA reg is not a Law. As far as Im concerned, the EPA declaring co2 a "hazard" does not carry the power of enforcement. So to any business owners out there, I say ignore them. I personally refuse to make ALWHORE or MONKEY MOON any wealthier or more authoritative. Same with the punk in the white house now. Ask the residents of Iowa and Wisconsin now about "global warming". Or maybe those folks in Houston or Dallas that got snowed on last week, the earliest in recorded history. As my wife says,ALWHORE is a great example of how the dinosaurs lived for millions of yrs with brains the size of peanuts.

HeatherRadish - December 11th, 2009 at 7:06 pm

Humans can put incredible amounts of energy into denial as a form of protecting their fragile psyches. Ever read any profiles about victims of Nigerian e-mail scams? Even after they've bankrupted their families and/or been caught stealing or embezzling to keep the scammer going, they keep believing there will be a payout. It's too devastating to their self-image and self-esteem to admit how stupid/gullible they were.

Very similar to true-believers in AGW. The difference is that the payout the AGW marks are expecting—and Gore and his crew give them bits here and there to keep them playing along—is psychological ("I saved the planet!") instead of financial.

I can't imagine how sad and empty one's life must be if washing their garbage, or paying extra money for "green" products, or voluntarily submitting to tyranny is what gives it meaning. If they weren't so eager to enslave me right along with themselves, I'd feel sorry for them.

Watching this, I have to imagine that the other "journalists" in the room must, at some level, feel simultaneously bootless and jealous in the presence of an authentic, against-the-establishment muckraker like McAleer. I mean, isn't that cache part of what motivates these people to go into journalism in the first place?

LolaLola - December 11th, 2009 at 7:34 pm

I know more than a few leftys who are unable to cope with reality. Instead of trying to be truly intellectually inquisitive they do exactly what they scream at so called conservatives for doing. They merely reflect their own hates onto others because ultimately this whole must save the planet, anti Christian, anti Capitalism, anti American and anti Western Culture that they spew forth is not about any of those subjects but about their own pathological narcissism and self loathing. No where will you find a bigger bigot than a hard core leftist. No where. Just look at Keith Olbermann or Rachael Maddow for examples. I was once told by a hard core leftist who like the most ardent among us had more money than he knew what to do with that he wanted to destroy the GOP. That's the measure of their hate and it wasn't about the fact he believed the GOP was bad...oh no.....when men he knew who were Republicans were fifty times the man he was he had to destroy it. To make himself feel better. That's the real issue here.

Dave Tallow - December 11th, 2009 at 7:38 pm

This is truly ashame.

If the rude film maker had simply allowed the press conference to proceed without forcing the interruption; chances are Professor Schneider would have ended up providing answers to similar questions when more mannerly journalists questioned him.

Why do some journalists feel they are above reproach and good etiquette?

I have to concur with a couple of comments posted here....I don't know what's up with this "Not Evil" stuff. A gargantuan fraud foisted on all of humankind is "not evil"?!? When Al Gore points his finger at me and says the earth is about a degree warmer than it was 100 years ago because I exhale CO2, that's "not evil"?!? Of course they're "just wrong", but I hope they're not saying these climate loons aren't evil because they want to appear "nice and tolerant" or something.

RandalUSA - December 11th, 2009 at 7:59 pm

The truth does not fear nor hide from scrutiny and skepticism. Global warming has been a Leftist lie all along. The debate is now over. And yet the Leftist liars keep blindly marching forward. Liberals have destroyed science with their politics. The liars need to go find something else to study and lie about. Make it something more believable and less expensive to "fix" next time, eh boys. 😊

There really wouldn't be a problem if they'd stop creating a problem by evading answers and refusing to give up the original data/methods of obtaining said data.

I mean, really... it's almost like they admit that they're making it all up. It's not like you'd see Isaac Newton trying to evade questions or evade giving out the data that shows how he came up with the theory of gravity. If they've got the evidence to back it up, why wouldn't they show it and stop beating around the bush?

Oh wait, that must mean that they don't have legitimately acquired evidence...

We who oppose this totalitarian move by the one-world government promoters need to speak forcefully and with one voice. This is NOT science! It is RELIGION! Their entire methodology in promoting the AGW scam comes from the playbook of cult management. REAL scientists welcome debate. REAL scientists open up their data and computer code so their experiments and results can be replicated. REAL scientists do NOT attempt to squelch dissenting views, harass those who provide dissenting data and silence those who ask legitimate (but tough) questions.

Time to start calling out these pseudo scientists for what they are- THEOCRATS!! Their religion resembles the pagan 'GAIA' Earth worship that places the Earth-Mother in pre-eminence over all things- including humanity. Point out their rigid theocratic methods at every opportunity. Refuse to accept 'on faith' their pronouncements, and demand proof (and data to back up their 'proof'). When backed into a corner (as seen above) they will lash out, rather than respond rationally. Proof of their nefarious and unscientific agenda.

The answer, of course, is the Earth has been cooling since 1998, but I'm betting the cowardly professor would choke on the question. Every believer in global warming should be forced to read all the printed material and data from the 1970s when so-called scientists warned of global cooling, a coming ice age, and death from starvation of half the world's people by the year 2000 because it would be too cold to grow food.

I considered printing all of the reports and mailing them to my senators, governor, the "climate czar", (gag me), the president and others but they don't care and they won't read them. I am going to create a website where I can upload these reports and then try to get the word out. Don't know exactly when I can do it but hopefully, soon.

KDK - December 11th, 2009 at 12:39 pm

Fortunately, around the globe voices are being heard and they are letting their gov know they are pissed off. This isn't just the US... I saw a Malaysian article basically stating that they don't want to be part of the scam. In GB also. Article that over $5B was made (or more) via a carbon scam. Some say 90% in some countries have been carbon-scammed this year.

It's over. Don't pollute... as in with substances that actually DO harm, injure or kill us or any other species. The planet will not submit to man's ignorance and schemes. The planet will continue to change, thankfully.

BTW: How did all that oil get under the desert in the Middle East? It is a desert and oil is formed in the sea and on land via organic materials that break down over time... hmmm. Wouldn't that mean that the desert was once wet and luscious? Wonder what the dinos did to raise the CO2 enough to make deserts out of oceans? Perhaps we need to ask the UN to investigate.

Gore should have that man killed; I hear he has some attack polar bear squads (sleeper bear cells) hidden around the world. Seems since the population of polar bears have been increasing they have been shipping them out and turning them into climate commandos. if people do not have a "left leaning" voice then they need to be silenced. What better way hide the lies coming from the climate scandal then to have the opposition removed permanently. I also heard that since the removal of individuals off the planet creates less outgoing carbon emissions from the body's natural process; Each removal creates Carbon credits. For every individual that is taken out (Killed), the Climate scientist will get credits toward their next Climate/Hooker/Propaganda convention.

This story is as absurd as this post...how does this happen with out people being accountable?

Bob Smith - December 11th, 2009 at 8:55 pm

The ClimateGate data and emails were released by a whistleblower. There are dozens of potential whistleblowers in American institutions, which participated in the fraud.

Encourage whistleblowers to tell the truth. Spread the word to the IPCC, Penn State, UEA, NASA, NOAA, DOE, and all over. Anyone who shares inside information about the AGW scammers is eligible for huge rewards. The momentum is with us now. We must organize and press the issue.

Who were the perpetrators of this fraud? From the lowliest, arrogant "scientist" at Penn State, right up to the White House, and the denizens of mansions in Tennessee.

Metaphorically speaking, heads will roll.

Else, the executive branch could not effectively regulate.

They publish the regulations, required by law, to get public comment, then after that period, they vote on it, then its law. Its why the teeth in the healthcare is in how much power is given to the Sec. of HHS to pass the details in regs. They will be the law.

Harnes - December 11th, 2009 at 9:29 pm

The UN Officials don't believe in the freedom of the Press. And in the US as more and more Newspapers and television stations are owned by chains, many with international connections, does anyone else feel there are stories these major news outlets are just ignoring.

1] Where are the analysis pieces that would give readers some idea what these proposed agreements mean to the average American? Not telling folks now these details is going to mean a LOT of angry Americans when they see massive increases in energy food costs.

2] These scientists and advocates have 30+ years of history on this topic. Newspapers and Television stations have the old stories from the 70s, 80s and 90s. If those stories are examined a lot of these advocates and some scientists would have no credibility because of scare warning they gave out decades ago that did not happen. But for some reason none of these major news organizations is looking at their old stories. Oh course more scare headlines are released almost every day, but can the public trust these stories, or for that matter, a news media that prefers to forget prior scare stories that proved false.

3] No matter what agreement is signed by this administration, if enough Americans get angry, the next Congress and next administration could abrogate the treaty and there may even be a real move to withdraw fully from the United Nations. The UN seems to be underestimating the power of the American people to get angry.

4] So far, as this case demonstrate, the UN wants to shut up critics. The easiest way to do that is release all the information, but strangely basic information has been destroyed the scientists involved have been doing everything they can to control the peer review system, and limit the access to data and the details on how they have reached these calculations. These are NOT military secrets – it's weather news! If the science is real the facts should prove it. Instead secrecy seems to rule and I don't believe anything has been settled.

That's why they carefully orchestrate who gets to ask questions. When that fails, they'll start with insults to change the subject. If that fails, you get this.

The left's entire ideology is constructed upon a foundation of emotions. And you can't debate facts, logic and reason with emotions. It doesn't work. Hence, avoid the debate altogether.

Big agree here. A good journalist (but left-leaning like most are...) must be so tied up in knots over how to extricate themselves from the truth of this story. I saw on television this morning the insufferable Andrea Mitchell mocking Sarah Palin "as a multi-millionaire" when the subject of her criticizing Al Gore and his stupid MMGW groupies. Of course, the fact that Algore has profited a hundred times over what Palin may have made on her stupid book was not tossed back at Andrea. Hey, Palin can be criticized for lots of things but don't make fun of her new wealth as compared to Algore's. How sad for these folks. Actually, few of them anymore are journalists! I often wonder how it might be different if Tim Russert were still alive. He certainly leaned left but he at least gave the right the correct time of day when it was necessary.

What a worthless dirtbag ol' Al Gore is. I loved how in 2000 he didn't even win the popular vote of voters from TN or even his old Congressional District, yet the election was 'stolen' from him.

In the following video Monckton provides so much evidence exposing the mountain of lies and fabrications that are the global warming scam, that it is amazing supporters of global warming do not hide their faces in shame and embarrassment:

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=4zOXmJ4jd-8>

Monckton is Christian and politically conservative, and therefore disregarded out of hand by most liberals, democrats, etc, but he is also honest. The conclusions he draws in this video are all accurate and verifiable, unlike the IPCC's (read the United Nations) lost global warming data.

The primary prophet of global warming, Al Gore, still has not accepted to debate Monckton. Wonder why...

Even with the recently unearthed emails, in which IPCC scientists are caught talking about altering data in order to make things look the way they want them to look (i.e. to further their and their masters' political agendas) and discussing ways to prevent others from studying their data, the United Nations and the White House (i.e. Obama and his lot) are still staunchly supporting the idea that humans are causing global warming. Wonder why...

Then, the Congress elected in 2010 can de-fund the EPA, and the President elected in 2012 can abolish it.

Gorwell - December 11th, 2009 at 10:33 pm

Jake, Okay, anyone who is honest with themselves and has done a little research into the matter knows global warming caused by humans is a hoax. It is an open secret that many major media outlets, Hollywood, the White House, etc go to great length to keep hidden. As to wondering why, the answer is simple: Obama and other like minded communist/socialist world leaders want to siphon tons of money from the United States to other United Nations countries. This will make the U.S. weaker and other socialist/communist nations stronger, which in turn will bring us that much closer to a single, global communist government that all nations will be subject to, i.e. slaves of. The purpose of the Copenhagen conference is merely to further bring the world closer to this Communist goal. Wether the U.N, Obama, and other communist powers will succeed depends on how many people realize what is going on and recognize how utterly miserable the world will become if the communists/socialists succeed.

If the UN leaders can perpetuate a fraud like this and then use the media and armed guards to silence dissidents, what is in store for the future. This is real scary stuff. It used to be that American leaders protected us from this type of European Orwellian tactics but now we are left to cling to our home states for help. Europe has created facism, socialism, comunism. They are masters of this type of ruling and now they are using our leaders to control us. I am not an alarmist but there has to come a time when you start to question what's going on. John Breland, I concur. The UN has outlived its usefulness. I believe that there should be a forum for countries to negotiate, that there should be international peace-keepers, and that there should be an international humanitarian organization. However, the UN has become a political body, and is no longer a creditable organization. Give the UN a year to move out, convert the building into condos, and form a new international organization outside the US without the political hacks.

Until an appropriate metric is utilized to determine the real adverse impacts on our biosphere by both anthropogenic activities and non-anthropogenic activities, alone and/or combined, no one can assess the harm of 'global warming.' If we think it's warm now, wait until earth's orbital variability shifts from 3% to 6%. It is estimated that warm and cold areas here on earth will experience anywhere from 20-30% more intensive climate changes....and for the global warming theorists, there isn't a damned thing humans can do about it.

.....It is logical and rationally normal for the current climate period to be in a warming mode as a natural, logical consequence of the unknown climate factors that caused the demise of the very recent 500 years of the 'Little Ice Age' (LIA). The subsequent warming post LIA is just one facet of earth's ever changing climate cycles. Hence, there currently is shrinkage of some glaciers and some of the ice in some parts of the earth. There is no such thing as a stable preferred climate period based on all of the past historical climate data/records.

.....Too bad the present day global warming alarmists could not travel back in time to the LIA. They would be so happy there and they would not have all of their endless predicted global warming disasters to distress them so much. The LIA was a very, very bad experience for those unfortunate to have lived during that climate period; with many millions of deaths from exposure, starvation, diseases and plagues. Be thankful that it ended just before YOU and I arrived on the scene!

This guy is a journalist like Michael Moore is a journalist. He asked a question, received an answer and didn't like the answer so he continued to interrupt the speaker. I guess that's what passes for "journalism" today.

KAGISO RESPONDS .. You can that an answer!? I call it a refusal to even consider the question .. A threat upon freedom of speech .. a threat upon freedom of the press..... a threat upon freedom of information .. Heywood, the kind of journalism you want can be found in North Korea and China and Cuba ... where western democracies are now headed with MSM being bought off and spewing propaganda for their masters .. GLOBAL WARMING IS A HOAX and is being used as a LIE as a reason to take away freedom and prosperity .. so that a few can benefit in greater power and financial GAIN ..Everyone out there .. we gotta fight this and be the last man standing ..

Climate change enthusiasts speak often of "peer reviewed" science. Why then doesn't anybody bring the following up and then ask them about it ?? ...

Oregon Institute of Science and Medicine (OISM)

Who: Dr. Arthur Robinson of the OISM

What: release of names in OISM "Petition Project"

When: 10 AM, Monday May 19, 2008

Where: Holeman Lounge at the National Press Club, 529 14th St., NW, Washington, DC

Why: the Oregon Institute of Science and Medicine (OISM) will announce that more than 31,000 scientists have signed a petition rejecting claims of human-caused global warming. The purpose of OISM's Petition Project is to demonstrate that the claim of "settled science" and an overwhelming "consensus" in favor of the hypothesis of human-caused global warming and consequent climate damage is wrong. No such consensus or settled science exists. As indicated by the petition text and signatory list, a very large number of American scientists reject this hypothesis.

It is evident that 31,072 Americans with university degrees in science – including 9,021 PhDs, are not "a few." Moreover, from the clear and strong petition statement that they have signed, it is evident that these 31,072 American scientists are not "skeptics."

The whole world needs to stop polluting, cut the majority of waste in plastics (bottled water), fine the hell out of corporate dumping and impose waste taxes at homes based on weight of trash. A hundred well thought out small steps will always cover more ground than ill conceived jumps, as we learned in the nursery rhyme about the tortoise and the hare.

Welcome to 1984, The UN's New World Order. Are you angry about this obvious fraud and the national media's complicity in the cover-up, misinformation, reframing and misdirection of the issue? Take responsibility and take action. STOP all donations to the political party(s) responsible for this fraud. STOP donations to all environmental groups which funded this Global Warming propaganda campaign with our money, especially The Environmental Defense Fund. They have violated the public trust. KEEP donations local, close to home. MAKE donations to Oklahoma's Senator Inhofe, the only politician to stand firmly against this obvious government/media coordinated information operation (propaganda) targeted at its own people. People that government leaders and employees are sworn to protect.

John A. Jauregui - December 12th, 2009 at 2:35 am

WRITE your state and federal representatives demanding wall to wall investigations of government sponsored funding and coordination of this and related propaganda campaigns and demand indictments of those responsible. WRITE your state and federal Attorneys General demanding Al Gore and others conducting Global Warming/Climate Change racketeering and mail fraud operations be brought to justice, indicted, tried, convicted and jailed. That's what I have done in response to this outrageous violation of the public trust. Think of the consequences if you do nothing! For one, the UK is becoming the poster child for George Orwell's "1984" and the US government's sponsorship of this worldwide Global Warming propaganda campaign puts it in a class with the failed Soviet Union's relentless violation of the basic human right to truthful government generated information. Given ClimateGate's burgeoning revelations of outrageous government misconduct and massive covert misinformation, what are the chances that this Administration's National Health Care sales campaign is anywhere near to the truth?

King For A Day - December 12th, 2009 at 2:54 am

These 'green' idiots are making a stronger argument for the extreme, hard line, right than anyone in history. Even though the US has jailed 1% of it's population, vastly more than any other nation in the world, it is still a somewhat free nation and there are still many people there interested in reality not lies and idiot propaganda. Crikey.

As for the UN, in case anyone couldn't figure it out by now, it is a force of evil in the world whose chief accomplishment is promoting genocide, such as in Rwanda for which Kofi Annan won the Nobel Peace Prize, and propping up third world dictators. The third world can never rise as long as the UN forces of oppression continue to fund and protect the criminals who benefit from the third world horrorshow. Leave these nations alone and they start to have a chance.

Global cooling is more reasonable based on ice core analysis (start with the Vostok core), but it doesn't have the same political potential. The simple conclusion is that the interglacial period we have been living through is ending naturally, right on schedule.

This conclusion requires interpretation of some fairly simple chemical analyses, but no global climate models that can be fudged.

In 1975 the US government pushed "the coming ice age."

In 1974, the National Science Board announced: "During the last 20 to 30 years, world temperature has fallen, irregularly at first but more sharply over the last decade. Judging from the record of the past interglacial ages, the present time of high temperatures should be drawing to an end, leading into the next ice age."

Obamas wealth redistribution in action, on a global scale.

Typically, if you tell a lie long enough, and enough people fall for it, soon it becomes truth, according to public opinion. Regardless, whether the lie had any fragment of truth at all, to begin with.

We wouldn't want all the GREENIES to leave their GREED inspired bond with Al Gore. However, if it's a positive light that the press sheds then they are all for questions to keep us in a catatonic state. I mean Al Gore is so knowledgeable. He knows the Earth's core is millions & millions of degrees. How did you take the temp Al? Was it orally, under the arm-pit, rectally, or just wrongly? I've said it before, but life among academics has taught me that a well expressed opinion is usually more credible, than a badly and incorrect fact, at least so far as professional advancement goes. Hey I doe-no but didn't that uniformed officer looked a little like Paul Sorvino, didn't he? I... mean... he kinda had that thug like appearance that Sorvino is famous for when he portrays mobsters.

What a tub lard that UN cop was... that overhanging belly he carries around, the guy's back must kill him at night when he sleeps. When the tub of lard isn't rousing journalist he must spend his day at the local Crispy Crème Donut shop.

Whew, a heart attack and stroke just waiting to happen.

It's a matter of survival now and not just the GW scam but their own skin is at risk. IF they do not prevail they will never work again and could even be prosecuted and face jail time for fraud and misuse of funds.

You know what happens when you trap a rat in a corner...they come at you fast with their teeth bared.

Al Gore and his minions jet around the world to exotic locales, meeting and plotting how to destroy our economy and way of life, all the while demanding that we peons ride the bus or subway, and turn our thermostats down to 60.

"Let them eat cake" attitudes are eerily similar to previous elites. The communist elites enjoyed the same privileges and mouthed the same type of platitudes. Where are they now?

No Consensus–No Warming (NOC-NOW)–Stop the Scam–Halt the IPCC

We have a quickly growing Yahoo Group (CO2 is Plant Food), and a petition (NOC-NOW) that simply spells out a Declaration of Climate Independence, and calls for immediate halt to all political and economic actions based on the fraudulent IPCC "science" and policy.

The petition will be provided to the US Congress, the White House, the UN, the IPCC, the EU Commission, and other representative bodies involved in "Climate Change" policy deliberations.

Post the call for whistleblowers in all forums where AGW insiders are present.

We will be heard.

The completely bogus nature of the "scientific" findings; supported by the United Nations, president B.H. Obama, most network news organizations (ABC, CBS, NBC, MSNBC, CNN, etc), 90% of late night talk shows, innumerable TV shows, Hollywood in general, and socialists/communists everywhere; have been obviously bogus for anyone honest enough with themselves and willing to look into the matter for a long while now. Christopher Monckton has been publically and decisively debunking anthropogenic global warming at least since 2006.

Ken - December 12th, 2009 at 6:15 am

Aren't these people showing the same attitude as the scientists in the emails? It just goes to show that it didn't take a grand conspiracy to make the global warming fraud what it is. "it is journalistically irresponsible to present both sides as though it were a question of balance. ... I don't set very much store by looking at the direct evidence. ... To avert the risk we need to get some broad-based support, to capture public imagination. That, of course, means getting loads of media coverage. So we have to offer up some scary scenarios, make some simplified dramatic statements and little mention of any doubts one might have. ... Each of us has to decide what the right balance is between being effective and being honest.

When I read the history books of the past I often wondered how it was that so many people were so easily led to their demise. Even now that I have seen it happen with my own eyes I still don't understand how gullible apparently so many people are. Why do so many just accept what a politician or an "expert" is telling them. In the 1400's the experts said the world was flat. In the 1970's the experts were telling us of a coming new ice age. Neither of those worked out too well. I guess because there was no money in it for them but now they have figured out a way to make some money with their current scam.

Most scientists not deliberately lying (being untruthful e.g. evil), they're pretty much doing a host of minor tricks to try to come of with proof to support what they believe is correct.

This can also be though of as committing pious fraud. That is... saying it's OK to lie as long as it supports a good clause.

The REAL problem is the liberal arts writers in the media has been publishing only articles that support Global Warming... in turn, the people believe them and elect politicians to do what they think their voters want them to do.

I see the whole thing as dishonest reporting by media editors.

As entrenched as this movement is in our country; given the rational basis for its stated goals – how can anyone shut the organization down?

Nothing on the ICIEI web site indicates an attempt to take property rights away or enslave anyone. That the UN is behind this is astonishing and I doubt that there are very many people aware of this.

But to suddenly rise up and allege some sort of conspiracy suggests a more radical movement than what is underway in counties and cities in the US.

While you have done a good job of shining light on an interesting situation, people are worried the UN will levy taxes on US citizens and it appears that we are already paying what stealth taxes visa vi fees and dues visa vi through local and regional governments – but, there is something healthy about the concept of “Sustainable development” is there not?

There are places in the world where that concept was ignored – and nothing but wastelands exist now where once were pristine – teaming with life environments.

Anyway, you got my attention but what else can you show me?

I have been saying this is nonsense for years – about two seconds after the subject was first raised, in fact – and there is plenty of good science out there to show that the "facts" given are not strictly accurate. I recommend jerry pournelle's excelent chaos manor site for objective viewpoints (plus a few pointers to what science is and how it functions in the real world). But then, I am a global warming denier (and therefor evil) and should be given no voice no mater what precedents or constitutional rights are abridged.

"Science is what supports our agenda. Anything that doesn't support our agenda is not science. We win. You lose. Give us your money or go to gaol. Thank you. Goodnight."

It has ever been thus, but the stakes have never been higher. A civilization that faces genuine problems cannot afford to waste money/resources on invented problems. (Think crazy eddie (google it and read the book if you haven't done so yet); the moties are us, just set to a slower cycle). We are in big trouble, right now, and this is just the sort of stupidity that will tip us over the edge. Civilization doesn't just happen. Freedom is not free. The constitution did not defend itself (which is why there is so little left of it). Take back your governments. Stand yourself.

Cogito - December 12th, 2009 at 1:43 pm

What legitimate scientist would deliberately destroy the "original" data on which his theory of man-made global warming is founded? Answer: None!

H. L. Mencken said, "The whole aim of practical politics is to keep the populace alarmed (and hence clamorous to be led to safety) by menacing it with an endless series of hobgoblins, all of them imaginary."

Mencken also said, "The urge to save humanity is almost always the false-face for the urge to rule it."

Man-made global warming is a scheme by national and international government to establish absolute power, extort the people's income and savings, and eliminate their freedom.

Follow the money. Who gets rich? Government, scientists through government funding, Al Gore, and the politicians in Congress that have invested in Gore's fraud, environmental newsmen. Who picks up the tab? You and me!

Keep track of projected and actual temperatures in your local area. I have to 3 years, and the average 24-hour predicted temperature is in error by 4 degrees. If there computer predicted accuracy is that far off in 24 hours, how far off is it in projecting temperature 30 and 40 years from now?

Mark - December 12th, 2009 at 1:45 pm

This all appears to be going according to plan. Consider the following passages written about a time when the environment will be worshipped:

Romans 1: Although they claimed to be wise, they became fools and exchanged the glory of the immortal God for images... Therefore God gave them over in the sinful desires of their hearts ... They exchanged the truth of God for a lie, and worshiped and served created things rather than the Creator—who is forever praised... Furthermore, since they did not think it worthwhile to retain the knowledge of God, he gave them over to a depraved mind, to do what ought not to be done. (Romans 1:22-28)

... They perish because they refused to love the truth and so be saved. For this reason God sends them a powerful delusion so that they will believe the lie and so that all will be condemned who have not believed the truth but have delighted in wickedness.(2 Thessalonians 2: 10-12)

There is no condemnation for those who are in Jesus. All who repent and seek God's forgiveness in their hearts will be saved, and live eternally. This is the good news of Christmas. Merry Christmas!!

It's really not hard to understand why our "scientists" chose to believe in global warming because that's where they are getting their money! If you don't believe you don't get money. This is really simple. We need for the money to go away so ACTUAL scientists can get back to being scientists and not politicians.

Religious political ideological propaganda posing as science legally protected from debate or dissent has been in the text books long before climate change. Evolution is the root religion; ecological planet worship is a mere branch. It is easy to tell Evolution is a world view and not emperical science: there is not a single technology that is depends on its veracity. Evolution has for a century been the state religion of the world powers. Socialism, Communism, Marxism, and Naziism are all political manifestations of Evolutionist states.

Does anyone out there remember the term "ecologist"? This is what we were all supposed to be in the 1970's—that is, a person that shepherds and watches out over their own individual place in the ecosystem, and how it might (or,might not) affects the general web of nature? Now, we are all "environmentalists", that is: now we are all supposed to worry about EVERYBODY'S affect on the whole. It is a subtle, yet important, distinction. This is where the Warm Mongers and Climate Change Jihadists get their cultural firepower. We've gone from a general understanding that each person is responsible for their own mess and its consequence, to a place where everyone is responsible for everyone's mess, without regard to the cost, both in real terms, and the intangibles such as loss of liberty. This is where the likes of "Professor" Schneider get the balls to order the thugs into the room. He knows the wireframe has been moved to favor his world view. The struggle will be to reframe the debate back onto the foundation of individual responsibility and liberty.

Can there now be ANY doubt about the legitimacy of the growing suspicion about the "man-made global warming hypothesis." So called "scientists" who destroy their original source data, and consistently suppress questions, debate, and disconfirming research have NO RIGHT to claim ANY validity or legitimacy for their argument. Freeconcern - December 12th, 2009 at 4:51 pm

This is no surprise considering everything we see going on. Things that are happening over the last year or so are at a pace never before seen, unless of course you know anything, even a little, about communism and the times of Stalin and Lenin. (Most people do know something about Hitler, but the others are not even being taught in schools—the revisionists are erasing the tracks). If one will stop, listen, read, observe, and THINK, it is apparent that this "control" (just look at what the state media of US is doing) is happening on many fronts and is accelerating. But there are two things that are very clear to me: talk radio will have to be silenced (and this will be pretty simple because the people exposing these things are few and can be removed via financial means) and, 2) the Internet will have to be squashed. If you look and listen, you will already see how control points are being established (i.e., ability to take it over in an "emergency", etc.). It will be the last foothold for freedom. It is a matter of when and how, not if.

Ridiculous rules of engagement that make UN troops ineffective when they are needed, Darfur fiasco, electing the Government of Sudan to be a watchdog for human rights, corrupt UN inspection programs, useless unenforced resolution after resolution against Saddam, sex scandals, and on and on and on...

To quote David Frum's editorial comment from USA Today: <http://www.usatoday.com/news/opinion/editorials/2..>

It's time to wake up to reality: The U.N. scandals are not unfortunate accidents. They are not incidental blots on the reputation of an otherwise idealistic organization. The scandals are inherent in the very structure of the U.N. It could be said that the U.N. itself is the scandal.

Let's just add man-made global warming to the pile. I'll never understand why so many people put their faith in an organization with such a despicable track record.

It is error alone which needs the support of government. Truth can stand by itself. – Thomas Jefferson

'If you tell a lie big enough and keep repeating it, people will eventually come to believe it. The lie can be maintained only for such time as the State can shield the people from the political, economic and/or military consequences of the lie. It thus becomes vitally important for the State to use all of its powers to repress dissent, for the truth is the mortal enemy of the lie, and thus by extension, the truth is the greatest enemy of the State.' – Joseph Goebbels, Nazi Propaganda Minister

"An evil exists that threatens every man, woman, and child of this great nation. We must take steps to insure our domestic security and protect our homeland."

If people let government decide what foods they eat and what medicines they take, their bodies will soon be in as sorry a state as are the souls of those who live under tyranny. – Thomas Jefferson

Tap dance around serious questions, silence the questioners, refuse to allow the press to attend conferences. These are "talks" that will eventually affect the lives of every man, woman, and child on the planet, and just like our Socialist Congress in the US, they are trying to get it done before too many people start learning about what a fraud it really is.

We are all responsible for electing these people. Putting the "lessor of two evils" into office is why we're at this point today.

Doesn't anyone wonder why the only way to solve "climate change" is with taxes and the redistribution of wealth? Such behavior is a personal failing, and you describe extremists of any stripe. Jim DeMint vowing to "break" the president, or Rush saying he wants him to fail, is no different. And of course, the real wack jobs carry out their threats, inspired by the likes of Hannity, O'Reilly, and yes potentially Olbermann, although the left hasn't had a majority share among wackos since the Weathermen disbanded in the 70s. These guys have reduced political discussion to raw entertainment, and the biggest danger is that we take them too seriously.

That said, anyone who won't admit that he could be wrong and seeks to avoid debate on a subject immediately loses credibility with me. Liberal or conservative. It's good to have opinions, but we are all slaves to the facts. And in matters of public policy, facts ought to trump opinions.

Given the evidence most prominently before us, this guy was an idiot for coming out to speak and not expecting to be faced with tough questions, and even more of a fool for reacting like a fascist. The damage he's done to the green movement is immeasurable.

I've noticed that the more responsible skeptics have started using the phrase, "human-induced global warming", or similar. It focuses us on the most important part of the debate.

Anyone who says we are not in a warming trend of some kind is simply ignoring the data. And there is a lot of correlation with recent human activity, which would be foolish and irresponsible to ignore. Those who have done painstaking work in this field deserve our thanks, but they also have a responsibility to (as well as an interest in) defend their assertions against skeptics. Every successful engagement adds to their credibility. Every botched one reduces it. In this regard, Schneider failed his profession miserably.

And anyone who ignores the fact that the emails proved that we are not in any warming trend and have not been for a decade is a fool. Your last silly paragraph is proof of that. Now please if you want to believe in your faux faith fine but do not shove Gaiia on the rest of us. If you want to spread wealth a round which is ultimately what this whole lie (which you believe in) is then spread your own around.

Transparency is quite the catch phrase these days. We were promised more transparency during the 2008 Presidential campaign as well, but you can see that hasn't been the case. Even when they do give information on their 18 million dollar website, it is inaccurate and sloppily put together. Then when they are called out on something they make excuses. Until the Government is cleaned out (both parties, republicans and democrats), we can't really trust their transparency. This includes the Executive and the Legislative branches. Regardless of your political affiliation, please pay attention to what is happening, we must be extra vigilant in watching what is being forced upon us. Pay attention to ALL things that get dumped to the media late at night or over the weekends. We are right to be proud of our President and what he has accomplished, however, we cannot let that pride blind us from what is going on.

CKA in Red State USA - December 13th, 2009 at 3:30 am

You're right: a regulation is a law. The former follows the latter. And, you bet, EPA can do exactly what it's doing.———The only way this has any chance of being stopped is through litigation. Sue and sue some more. Use that tactic the enviro-wackos, but especially the Sierra Club and NRDC, have been using for a long time. Tie this thing up in court so long that it'll be decades before anything remotely possible will happen.———By that time, the "political" science and fraud will have been exposed for just that. And, one hopes, Al Gore, James Hansen and others, including the economist who heads the UN IPCC will have been charged with something akin to criminal fraud.———And the so-called academics who've perverted honest investigation will have been so discredited that they pose no further risk.

CKA in Red State USA - December 13th, 2009 at 3:33 am

Oops. A regulation is not a law. By the way: Some nit-pickers would argue that a rule is different than a regulation. The endgame is the same, though.

One more thing: Lots and lots of state and federal bureaucrats have a lot invested in keep alive the catastrophic-anthropogenic-global-warming game.

Brian Hall - December 13th, 2009 at 3:37 am

The media is not entirely clueless. Here's an article by a business writer in a Canadian paper:

<http://tinyurl.com/ClimateMania>

Avner Mandelman

Published on Friday, Dec. 04, 2009 7:14PM EST Last updated on Saturday, Dec. 05, 2009 3:14AM EST

I've said before that you are more vulnerable to skillful rhetoric than you think. Well, the past week proved it.

You've probably read about "Climategate" – how thousands of hacked e-mails from climate scientists revealed that they colluded to fudge their conclusions about global warming, told each other to destroy incriminating e-mails and perhaps even dumped raw data to mask the fraud.

Why did it work? Because the falsified conclusions appealed to people's good nature, and because the conspirators co-opted above-average rhetoricians to deliver their message.

Now why am I going on about this? For two reasons: First, because global warming is an investment theme that a few brokers are pushing; so, if you are a theme investor, be careful. Second, this sort of revelation is a perfect teaching moment of the madness of crowds.

Similar irrational manias included global cooling in the 1970s (when investors were urged to invest in thermal insulation, and the like); the Club of Rome's fear that we're running out of resources; the Internet dot-com bubble, when insane stock prices for companies without revenues were the norm; and others of the same ilk: mass hysterias that allowed a few media-savvy promoters to take the money of the many, by preying on their credulity, their emotions or both. Like global warming now.

If you think that calling global warming an irrational mania is a bit harsh, consider this: Say that a pharmaceutical company's researchers were caught fudging their tests to make their drug look effective; then, when found out, conveniently lost the non-fudged data. If a doctor prescribed for your child the fraudsters' drug, would you let her take it? If you said yes, would we not be justified in saying you are acting irrationally?

This, in effect, is what's happening now: global warming has become a near-religious test of civic virtue, just as being invested in Internet stocks became a test of investment savvy in 2000. Which is why many investors dazedly held on to Nortel all the way down to zero, even after its accounting issues had been revealed. And now, even though you can't trust the climate change data, the Copenhagen conference still goes on and promoters including Al Gore are out begging the public to give the scientists the benefit of the doubt. This is the same Mr. Gore who is profiting from tax credit-based environmental investments.

Do you still wonder why I see elements of mass madness here?

If there's a key lesson here for you, it's this: learn to resist the lure of popular fads, whether market-related, or ideology-based. If you don't, you're likely to find yourself investing in the next Nortel, Bre-X, or Madoff fund, or windmills supported by tax credits.

Oh, yes, tax credits. If there's one area to watch out for, it's a virtuous industry needing tax credits to make it viable. In the 1960s, the Club of Rome concluded (based on some other dodgy data) that the world was running out of resources. So, the Canadian government gave inventory tax credits to mining companies. The result was overproduction, bankruptcies and low resource prices for years. There was a similar panic about oil in the '70s, so huge tax breaks were offered for drilling the polar icecaps. The drillers went bust, as did some RRSPs for the credulous who fell for it.

Honest scientists can fall prey to manias, too – especially investment scientists. Remember modern portfolio theory? It, too, was a popular mass-mania that came replete with math and famous professors, who got Nobel prizes for the silly notion that risk is equivalent to the squiggleness of a line, not ignorance of the fundamentals. This theory ushered in derivatives and the Basel I and II banking rules, which helped undermine the global banking system.

How could you know that modern portfolio theory was a popular mania, and that its science was bunk? Why, Warren Buffett warned you for years. The main supporters were professors and derivatives salesmen – all of whom, like Al Gore (another Nobelist), benefited from the foolishness, while the masses lost.

So how can you ensure you're not harmed in future by slick rhetoric? First, by forcing yourself to admit, when the first signs of fraud appear, that you have been duped. Don't let your pride stand in the way. Get out. This way, you avoid staying on to the grim end with future Nortels.

Second, whenever you see a talking head pushing a stock or a fashionable disaster on TV, ask yourself: "Who pays him?" Everyone in the market is talking up his book, yet once a mania starts, everyone has the same book, and so they all push the same thing higher until it all unravels.

How close are we to the unravelling of the global warming fad? I think it has started.

There are already calls in the United States and Britain for probes into Climategate, and dragging out all the lies and airing them in public will be the end of global warming.

So don't get stuck with investments tied to it, either directly, or via tax credits.

Eyeball - December 13th, 2009 at 4:17 am

I am sick of this global change fraud. It's the Sun stupid. Man is not causing global change. Man is too pissy to do that. Have you ever wondered why Al Gore has never debated a scientist about global warming? It's because Al Gore couldn't stand up against someone knowledgeable for 5 minutes before he was made to look like a fool. The people who are still pushing this fraud are in it for the money to be made in carbon credit payments or from fines to corporations, or from Cap and Trade taxes. Big money is to be made for this people and they are seeing their fabricated climate crisis coming apart and they are getting nasty. I think these people who suppressed data and lied about global warming for the last 30+ years should go to jail, because trillions of dollars have already been spent by corporations to comply to legislated carbon emission standards that did not need to be implemented. That money could have been spent for some humanitarian need, rather than wasted.

I haven't read McAleer's documentary "Not Evil, Just Wrong" and I am not willing to give them (statists) the benefit of the doubt. To quote the Great One, Mark Levin, "...and it's about time that we stopped giving the statist the benefit of the doubt and accept the fact that he does not share our passion for liberty and the good that flows from it. The statist is basically a malcontent."

We can no longer waste time giving leftists the benefit of the doubt. It is EVIL.

Lock and load people. When these tyrants try to impose their tyranny on us, simply aim and shoot. Start with that piece of crap Obama and work your way through the entire UN assembly of One World traitors.

KILL THEM ALL.

When do we make out the zillion dollar checks to the 3rd worlders who are being labeled as environmental refugees by the international liberal elite.

PashaVentura - December 13th, 2009 at 6:22 am

I do NOT believe in man made global warming. In fact, the true data suggests we are in a COOLING trend not a warming trend. (Ask people in Houston, Texas where it has snowed if they believe in global warming!!) What is really sad, is the press is silent on this. When i log onto the internet, the main screen flashes stories about Rihanna's new tattoo, or Tiger Woods going on leave from playing golf indefinitely. These are NOT news items. Why isn't the mainstream press reporting on any of this?? Did Obama promise to bail them out so they are just making sure not to expose him?? I AM REALLY SCARED by the idea of a New World gov't ... really scared.

The evidence is apparently having an effect on these men and women of righteous scientific virtue and honor, I take it it's not the kind of limelight they really wanted when they set out to save the world no matter what.

I want to see Al Gore put under the same scrutiny and I want him to put forth evidence of his schemes for decarbonizing the world while everyone paid thru the nose.

The DemocRATS are pros at creating a climate of fear and then capitalizing on it to gain control of every facet of your life. They thrive on fear. They contrive to manufacture it. They seize on every opportunity to exploit it so as to produce more and more laws that control in every way possible your words, your actions, and now with their hate crime laws, even your thoughts. WAKE UP! Look around you! Are you satisfied with what the DemocRATS are doing to you and your family? If not, STOP VOTING FOR THEM!

After reading a lot of the comments here, it is plain to see that many think global climate change is predicated on false science. But my question to you is, what are you going to do about it?? We have posted to comments here, but that is preaching to the choir. We need to really do something, like contact our congressmen, or our prime ministers. This is really scary stuff that is happening in Copenhagen and can no longer be denied! If you are reading this, please please DO SOMETHING about your views. Make a difference and let them know you will not just go along with a one world government. You owe it to yourselves and your children, and their children. This is serious stuff people, so GO! do something about it!!

i am encouraged to see that people are waking up. aren't journalists supposed to ask questions like this? it has taken a while but better late than never I say. whats with the "U.N. rent-a-cop" acting like a tough guy? Do American tax dollars pay his salary. these "scientific elites" live in a fantasy land. I hope that "expert" wet himself a little on the way out :^)

I wonder how much it costs that commie Soros to buy these people? What is in this for Soros, Gore and all the rest who fall in line for the Hoax? From the supposed scientists to the jack booted thug guards it is obvious this Carbon Tax nonsense and the Global warming hoax cannot stand up too legitamate investigation and questions so those who question it's science are silenced or ignored....it's only a matter of time before we who do not believe the hoax will be jailed.

Let me explain the grounds for his removal by force. He disagreed with the globalist agenda to establish a world government supported Green Industrial Complex. That is unacceptable. This will only get worse after the World Tyranny Treaty passes in Copenhagen.

I do agree with all this discussion, however, the time to talk should be over don't you ladies agree? I believe it well past time to do something constuctive, like get all these liberal socialist mutts off the street for good. Talking about it is a waste of time! ENVIORMENTAL SCIENCE and POLITICIANS, ARE ALL THE SAME.
IT WILL SOON GET TO THE POINT AS IT IS NOW WITH POLITICIANS; A QUESTION WILL BE ASKED.
QUESTION: HOW WILL WE KNOW IF A SCIENTIST IS LYING WHILE PROMOTING ENVIRONMENTAL ISSUES?
ANSWER; THEIR LIPS ARE MOVING.

THIS IS SCIENTIFIC FASCISM, SHUT DOWN THE PRESS AND FREE THINKING PEOPLE.
EVERYONE MUST GOOSE STEP TO ILLEGITIMATE SCIENCE DATA NOW ON PARADE.

McAleer did not read the sign on the door correctly.

It read: "Press" Conference.

If he is unwilling to play along, then what does he expect?

robertsgunshop - December 13th, 2009 at 2:48 pm

We haven't had a government of the people in a lot of years. Our elected represenatives have become the ruling class that belive they are above us. The problem is everyone thinks their rep is doing a great job and everyone else is a crook. People need to wake up. Everyone up there is a liar and thief. We need to vote everone of them out next year. If that doesn't work, pick up the pitchforks and torches and forcably remove them.

robertsgunshop - December 13th, 2009 at 2:51 pm
